Innes Reopens Gardena Store

An experiment in merchandising will begin in this area tomorrow when Innes Shoes reopens its Gardena branch store, 14804 Crenshaw boulevard on a discount basis.

According to a store spokesman, discounts of 50 to 70 per cent will be available on most purchases, offering a "guaranteed" savings to local shoppers. The grand reopening sale of the "new" Innes store will feature a wide-selection of famous brand, top-quality footwear, at reduced prices.

This store will be an experiment in shoe merchandising, according to Innes spokesmen, for it will feature many styles which have been discontinued at other Innes stores.

Officials of the chain believe that there is still a great demand for shoes without current extreme styling such as the pointed toe and the extremely thin heel. They are offering shoes of more moderate type, which have been discontinued in many other Innes stores, at discount prices.

It is estimated that 13,840 pairs of quality shoes for men, women, and children will be available beginning tomorrow. The selection will include extra-small and extra-large sizes, pointed toes, rounded toes, sandals, flats, pumps, oxfords, high and mid-heels, and thick and thin heels.

Also a wide variety of handbags will be offered at similar discount savings. As an additional feature, the remodeled Innes store is designed for self-service shopping.
